

CALL FOR STREAM PROPOSALS

LONDON CONFERENCE IN CRITICAL THOUGHT

Royal Holloway, University of London

June 6th and 7th, 2013

Building on the success of the inaugural conference, the 2013 London Conference in Critical Thought (LCCT) will offer a space for an interdisciplinary exchange of ideas for scholars who work with critical traditions and concerns. It aims to provide opportunities for those who frequently find themselves at the margins of their department or discipline to engage with other scholars who share theoretical approaches and interests. Central to this vision is an inter-institutional, non-hierarchical, and accessible event which makes a particular effort to embrace emergent thought and the participation of emerging academics, fostering new avenues for critically orientated scholarship and collaboration. Coordinated by colleagues from across the University of London, this year's conference is to be held at Royal Holloway on the 6th and 7th June, 2013.

We now welcome proposals for thematic streams for the 2013 conference. Last year's conference included streams as diverse as 'Critical Human Rights', 'Radical Political Rhetoric', 'Spatial Text', 'The Object: between Time and Temporality', and 'Deleuzian Theory in Practice'. It brought into conversation scholars working in the fields of philosophy, fine art, geography, politics, law, musicology, literature, and many others.

The deadline for stream proposals is the 20th of January, 2013. Stream proposals should include abstracts or descriptions that seek to stimulate a range of cross-disciplinary responses. A later call for papers (in early February) will seek proposals for presentations suited to the accepted conference streams, as well as paper proposals for inclusion in a general stream. Given the collaborative nature of the conference, stream convenors will have input into and take a hand in the coordination of the conference.

Please send stream proposals to londoncriticalconference@gmail.com. Details of last year's conference (including previous streams and papers) can be found on the LCCT website.

<http://londonconferenceincriticalthought.wordpress.com/>

Email: londoncriticalconference@gmail.com

Twitter: @LondonCritical